PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Cyndi Flautt, July/August 2025

Congratulations to the breeders and owners of Levi and Rosie who once again have earned the distinction of Highest Living ROM! Congrats also to the breeders and owners of our new ROM sires and dams. We celebrate your accomplishments! Piloting a dog or bitch to the title of ROM is a labor of love and a true “doggy milestone”.

The ROM automation project is almost complete and will be used to calculate the statistics for the 2025 sires and dams. We owe a huge debt of gratitude for the hard work and expertise of the ad-hoc committee who took on the project and brought our ROM program into the digital age!

ON THE COVER

LEVI & ROSIE

AOE GV 3X SELECT EX GCH MBISS WOLF CREEK LEVI RN TC CGCA CGCU ROM

2024 Highest Living ROM Sire

We are extremely honored to have GV Levi named highest Living ROM for the second year in a row and to share the cover with GVX Rosie again. Ironically, Levi and Rosie produced a phenomenal litter in 2020. Of the 5 puppies, 3 are Champions, 2 were named US National Selects, as well as have earned their ROM's. Bentley, then went on to earn the coveted title of Canadian GV. It was quiet the cross!

Levi has sired a number of litters that produced multiple champions. He holds the #1 spot for AKC majors, for the 4th year consecutively and remains the top producing Futurity Sire. Levi progenies were named Best in Futurity at the national in 2023, and Futurity Victor and Victrix in Reno in 2024, where 10 qualified for the Futurity/Maturity finals. To date, he has a total of 65+ Champions, multiple BISS winners, 17 that hold GSDCA Select titles, as well as a Dual Award recipient, and many others with performance titles.

Levi turns 8 in September. Who could have known what an impact this 5 week old puppy was going to have on our breed?

It has been quite a ride, one that would not have been possible without much support along the way. Heartfelt thanks to all who bred their beautiful girls to him, as we definately know it takes 2! And for all of the time, energy and money it takes to get these kids to the show ring, so they get the chance to reach their full potential...

We are forever grateful!

ROSIE

GVX SEL CH BIF BOM MBISS Norberge's Razzle Rosarita of Clayfield ROM

2024 Highest Living ROM Dam

As we write this we realize that our Grand Victrix Rosie is almost 11 years old and we are honored to present her as the Top Living ROM Dam!! Being selected as GVX at only 2 years of age by Helen Gleason was a dream come true, but turned out to be just the beginning for our Rosie! She is truly that once in a lifetime show dog and what an amazing producer.

Her first litter sired by GV 2xSEL GCHP Wolf Creek Galaxy of Merivern ROM produced 5 champions honoring her with her ROM. Her second litter sired by GCHP BOF BIM Rosewood's Galileo ROM also produced 5 champions. Her third litter was sired by SEL CAN/AM CH Kennelwood's Man U Man ROM and produced 2 Champions including the 2021 Canadian National WD, BOW and 2x CAN Select. For her fourth litter we went back to Leo and this litter produced 3 champions including the 2021 Canadian FVX and US FV and National WD. Her 5th litter was sired by SEL CH Wolf Creek Levi ROM producing 3 champions plus a 4th qualifier with a long coated bitch. This Levi litter also has 2 US/CAN Sel who are also 2 ROM progeny and we were honored in 2024 when her son Norberge's C'est Si Bon of Clayfield went CAN GV!!

Her last litter was a surprise and produced 2 girls sired by her son CAN GV Bentley (Levi Son). She currently has 19 CHs and 2 qualifiers. She has 3 ROM progeny and 1 needing just a qualifier. She has 3 US SEL and 3 CAN SEL Progeny.

As Rosie is now retired from the whelping box, we continue to see her progeny and grandkids in the show and performance rings. We are also excited to see her progeny continue in her footsteps as excellent producers passing down Rosie's beautiful balance, type and suspension as her grandkids can be seen winning futurities/maturities and making their presence in the show ring.

We are so thankful for Rosie and her progeny but are also extremely thankful for all the owners of her progeny! All of this would not be possible without them. We realize she is certainly a once in a lifetime dog, but to see her in her progeny and now grand kids allows the dream to continue. And Last, but certainly not least, huge thanks to Zac and Lindsey and Karen Taylor for all their work and never ending belief in our Rosie!

COOPERATION FOR THE FUTURE

by Patricia V. Trotter, from the 2002 Redbook

Breed the best to the best and hope for “the best” is an oft-repeated phrase that does not mean breed the top-winning bitch to the top-winning dog. Instead, it means breed the best-producing brood matron to the best-producing sire that is most appropriate for her individual needs and for the needs of her family. If you want to breed quality dogs, understanding this premise is like learning your ABCs.

FINDING A FOUNDATION BITCH

Sometimes this option is not possible even when you have done all the necessary homework. At many of the seminars I give, participants tell sad tales of their inability to obtain a quality foundation bitch from which to proceed. We are not talking about a personal foundation bitch, one that is so designated because she is her owner’s first bitch. We are talking about breeders who have gotten beyond that state and are seeking a true foundation bitch—one that is a foundation bitch for the breed—from which to breed. These people are often heard to lament that no one will let such a good bitch go.

This is a troubling situation, but at the same time it is a somewhat understandable one. Senior, experienced breeders face many obstacles when dealing with younger breeders. Old-timers have learned that the most important part of the equation is to know dogs rather than to show dogs. Their concentration was on learning everything possible about the animals in general and the specific breed in particular, and then going to a few shows a year to test their progress and continue to learn.

This was easier to do in the days of the benched show, which created the camaraderie that seems sadly lacking among some of today’s breeders. When today’s accomplished and successful breeders find newcomers who are interested only in show wins, it demoralizes them and stifles their desire to help. Because the pursuit of instant gratification was not part of their own personal history, it is disturbing when they see it in the people who will determine the future of their breed. Although they understand the desire to compete, they are often unable to identify with the increased fierceness of this modern competitive spirit and the loss of sportsmanship that accompanies it.

SHOWING PATIENCE

Despite the validity of their feelings, master breeders must find a way to accommodate the changing times while remaining true to their purest principles in breeding if their contributions to the breed are not to be lost to posterity. Instead of resenting the “now generation,” master breeders must show the same patience in working with inexperienced breeders that they once showed in working-with their own breeding stock. They must zero in on teaching the concept that doing one’s homework, remaining patient while waiting for results, and becoming a knowledgeable dog person is the only way to reach the point where you have something of value to contribute to purebred dogs on a long-term basis.

Master breeders need to help everyone realize that each breed’s gene pool can be viewed as an unending chain that started in antiquity at the time when dogs evolved into different forms to perform various functions. This chain will have links that they put into it—links which will go on as long as purebred dogs are bred. It is the responsibility of everyone who would be a breeder to put the strongest possible links in that chain. One weak link compromises the integrity of the entire gene pool.

This means making whatever adjustments are necessary to deal with the overburdened schedules and other obstacles that are the by-products of an anxious society. Such pressures make it more difficult on the one hand for the learning process to take place, while on the other hand making it more difficult for breeders to house enough animals to teach newcomers as well as maintain their breeding program. Further, many young breeders depend far too heavily on the Internet for their information. Much of what they find there is misleading. Nothing replaces the guidance of a gifted mentor who has hands-on knowledge utilizing that knowledge in regard to quality dogs.

Master breeders with great lines of dogs may be reluctant to let their best bitches go, even though the difficulties of modern life have encroached on their ability to house enough dogs to continue a quality breeding program. Sometimes it just seems easier to sell a promising puppy-bitch to a good pet home where she will be spayed than to get involved with complicated relationships. Because we live in such a litigious society, master breeders often wonder if they are dealing with people of good will who will honor the agreements they have made. Legal cases regarding disagreements over breeding stock are more common now than ever before in my memory.

COOPERATION

Exactly what can be done to help lovers of a given breed understand that we have more things in common than they do issues that separate us? The answer is anybody's guess. How we utilize our common goals in a way that brings us together is a vital issue. For dog lovers to face the threats of the future will require a degree of cooperation that is difficult to achieve in a stressful world.

The troubling loss of great lines of dogs and the kennels that produced them presents a challenge to the entire fancy. Many breeds have no great lines left, while others that do have them find those great lines in the hand of aging breeders, with no young breeders on the horizon to replace them. How will we cope with this predicament?

The obvious answer is for young breeders in a given breed to work together with master breeders to preserve great lines, develop quality lines of their own, and cooperate in all aspects of their joint venture. They must dedicate themselves to becoming true scholars of their breed in regard to conformation, pedigrees, health issues, temperament, breed character, and every other subject related to producing superior dogs.

“We have to appreciate that the ultimate sign of a great dog is what it produces, not what it achieves in the show ring.”

Once these young breeders pay their dues and prove to everyone that they are true guardians of their breed, master breeders will feel comfortable and re-energized when they place quality bitches in their hands. Then we move back to the situation outlined in my opening statement, where the quality bitch will be taken to the best-producing sire that is most appropriate for her needs, those of her family, and those of the breed. This is what is truly meant by breeding to the best, and it has little to do with records or rankings.

We have to appreciate that the ultimate sign of a great dog is what it produces, not what it achieves in the show ring. Nonetheless, there are lessons to be learned from studying the results of the great and timeless shows, such as Westminster and various national specialties over the years. Usually, the current winners at these classic competitions are those whose ancestors have won in the past and whose descendants are likely to win in the future. This is because, at this high level, the best of the best competes, and because these shows are adjudicated by knowledgeable experts who are in pursuit of excellence. In these shows all the necessary components come together in a demonstration of the ultimate selection process in action. ■

REKINDLED SPIRIT

by Kathy Sarter Partch

"At times our own light goes out and is rekindled by a spark from another person. Each of us has cause to think with deep gratitude of those who have lighted the flame within us." -Albert Schweitzer

In my day, as a German Shepherd Dog breeder, I watched him come into this world. He almost died. He was small and not as strong as his littermates. He was not breathing. His lifeless little body lay limp in my hands. I rubbed him gently and blew little breaths into his mouth. He then took that first breath. The most wonderful feeling came over me. I had saved a life. I thought if I had not been there, would he have lived?

Most German Shepherd Dog breeders or any breeder realize that having respect and responsibility for what we do can be extremely difficult in finding the perfect forever homes for our puppies. I don't think I was tough enough to be that breeder in the early nineties. Why? Because even if I did everything to make things accurate, I still ran into sad and upsetting situations dealing with the public. Sometimes, those moments gave me sleepless nights of fretfulness for my babies.

I always had OFA stock, and I had contracts; when the puppies made it to their new homes and when they turned around a year old, I sent questionnaires to my buyers asking about their puppies with a self-addressed/stamped envelope so hopefully I would know how they were doing if I had not already heard from them. My puppies were always well socialized at home and about; I had screened buyers in the best way possible. There were always titles on both ends of my white-coated German Shepherd Dogs. But what can happen after those vital details in breeding any breed of dogs we have addressed? Well, there can be much that can happen when it comes to doing business with individuals. Especially people you do not know or think you know.

Rekindled Spirit: I named the little runt from seven in my 1991 litter Schutzhund Boy. I always noticed one or two of his littermates would often pick on him. One day, as I spent time with the puppies, Schutzhund Boy had enough and protested to protect himself. Schutzhund Boy fought back this time. Never again did he get harassed. At such an early age, I witnessed those premature, powerful temperaments. When veterinarian ready, Schutzhund Boy, [pet quality/cryptorchid], I carefully selected a young couple in Minneapolis, Minnesota, for this puppy. They promised in their contract to neuter their puppy as soon as their veterinarian suggested the best time. Also, they would take him for puppy classes and obedience training.

Becoming their neighbors' guardians

K-9 officer Bill Lundquist, with his dog, Rocky, talked to youth Tuesday as part of Camden Community Night Out in Forest Park in north Minneapolis. The event's goal was to encourage neighbors to reduce crime by watching out for one another and reporting crime. Night Out activities included lectures on crime prevention, a spaghetti dinner for $10, face-painting and children's games.

Soon after, I got a call from the young couple telling me their new puppy, Fenris, who would violently get carsick, had stopped taking him to puppy classes. I tried everything with the couple to help Fenris with his car sickness. Only for them to let me know they stopped taking him in the car anywhere, letting him run and do nothing in their backyard from then on. Plus, they were frustrated with their neighborhood children teasing Fenris at their fence line. We finally agreed that Fenris would return to me. They could not manage him anymore because he had become too challenging. They also never neutered him as promised. He was now getting close to four years of age. As we made a date for when he would return to me, I waited patiently for my request for Fenris to be returned to me.

A week or so later, waiting for Fenris' return, I received a letter from K-9 Officer William Lundquist from the Minneapolis, Minnesota Canine Unit, who was assigned to a new dog named Fenris. The young couple donated Fenris for the dog's last chance instead of giving him back to me. Lundquist had been a Minneapolis K-9 trainer for twenty-eight years and for thirty-two years on the force, considered a record in his department. Lundquist had just lost his precious German Shepherd Dog, Rocky, to Degenerative Myelopathy (DM) and then assigned Fenris as his new dog. At that time, the Minneapolis K-9 unit consisted of German Shepherd Dogs; later, the Malinois became the breed of choice. Lundquist said that most of their German Shepherd Dogs came from various Humane Societies and were evaluated for suitability for the work. But since Lundquist had no other dogs at that time to choose from and was getting close to retirement, he thought he would give this lost soul a chance. He said, "His new dog's name, Fenris, would not work. I will call him Bart!"

So, Bart had gotten a good going over with the K-9's veterinarian clinic. He passed his X-rays and everything else, except for the cryptorchid issue that was genuinely concerning to the veterinarian. He explained everything to Lundquist, and the operation could have complications as to Bart's health in the future. At that time, Lundquist told me, "I have started to work with Bart in basic training, feeding, and all care, and he has responded amazingly well as if I had had him since he was a youngster! I strongly feel Bart is going to be my next K-9, and I am going to change his health currently by not neutering."

Bart continued to pass all his qualifications each year at the K-9 trials. Sadly, there was another K-9 handler that wanted to breed to Bart because of his incredible intelligence and drive. My husband Joe and I went to many of Bart's trials. Watching them work was impressive, especially with his apprehending and agility exercises. Bart was also great when Lundquist called him off his apprehending exercises. Bart and Lundquist worked the day shift for five years until both retired simultaneously. Lundquist shared countless stories of him and Bart working together. Bart lived a bit over twelve years of age when he died from liver cancer.

Over the years, we became extremely close to Officer Lundquist and his wife, Pat. Lundquist passed away years later from COVID-19, and his wife, Pat, passed from Alzheimer's disease.

Bart spent the rest of his life in a squad car, never getting car sick.

As a breeder in my day of magnificent German Shepherd Dogs, I always tried my best to make all the correct decisions on where that next puppy's destination would begin. Those moments either ended as a prize or misfortune. Sometimes, what puppy customers tell us initially is not the whole truth. Certain ones do not even know what they need or want in a dog. They have dreams to master, but not the truest of spirit or knowledge going forth with such accomplishments once they have signed that breeder's contract. However, the breeders' job can be challenging to achieve when we genuinely care. We only hope and try our best. ■

ESSENTIAL SKILLS

ALL BREEDERS SHOULD KNOW

by Carmen Battaglia

Recently, the AKC Detection Dog Task Force (DDTF) hosted the first webinar of a two-part series Dr. Carmen Battaglia, AKC Board Director and DDTF Co-Chair, on the foundations of building an exceptional breeding program.

In “Essential Skills All Breeders Should Know, Part One”, Dr. Battaglia identified eight skills for successful breeders:

1. Breed Knowledge
 - Purpose of the breed
 - Important dogs in the breed
 - Dreaded, inheritable diseases
2. Breed Standard
3. Method to Select Sires and Dams
4. Evaluate Pedigrees (depth/breadth)
 - 3 generation pedigrees (depth)
 - Littermates (breadth)
5. Evaluate Litters
 - Allow litter to grow and develop
6. Pick Best Puppies
7. Record System
8. Manage, Feed and Develop What You Keep
 - Nutrition
 - Early Neurological Stimulation (ENS)
 - Maternal Influence
 - Better backs
 - Better elbows
 - Better feet
 - Fewer missing testicles
 - Socialization

Dr. Battaglia noted that when selecting a sire and dam, it's crucial to offset their strengths and weaknesses. Evaluating them for correct and balancing structure is one of the first – and most important—steps in making breeding decisions. He explored the seven traits described in breed standards that identify physical characteristics that give a dog its unique shape, movement and overall appearance and enable it to perform the job it is intended to do. He also introduced attendees to a unique coding strategy to identify faults/disorders, including his “stick dog” pedigrees, to highlight trends and patterns in a dog's pedigree.

When evaluating a litter and individual puppies it is important to remember that a puppy's brain isn't fully developed until around 14 weeks of age, he said. “Testing puppies before they are 14 weeks old is high risk”.

The information provided in this webinar focused on detection dogs but is relevant and beneficial to all dog breeders and enthusiasts who seek to produce and raise working dogs that can perform at high levels while maintaining pleasant demeanors and structural soundness.

Dr. Battaglia continued with part two of this program on Wednesday, May 21, 2025, at 7:30pm ET.

All webinar attendees were entered in a raffle to win an autographed copy of Dr. Battaglia's latest publication, Training Your Puppy: A Guide to Their Development. The winner is Frank Leatherbury, of Alabama! Mr. Leatherbury, look for special mail coming your way!

2024 REGISTER OF MERIT SIRE & DAMS

ROM Committee:

Chair: Dee Lauffer, wynottgsd@gmail.com, 719-491-4663

Technical Consultant: Kim McNamara, klite3gsd@gmail.com

Many thanks to Chris Carter who served 11 years as ROM Chair.

The prestigious Register of Merit (ROM) title is awarded to sires and dams of progeny competing in the conformation and performance rings. The qualifications are different for the sire than for the dam as the sire will probably have more progeny in his lifetime than the dam. Progeny earning Performance titles must have earned at least a Major Reserve in Conformation to be eligible for ROM points. At least one owner of the sire or dam must be a member of the GSDCA. Data is compiled based on the calendar year.

- For a sire to become Register of Merit, the following requirements must be met:
 - His point total must be 100 or more.
 - The points must be earned by 10 or more progeny.

 - The remainder must have won at least a major reserve.
- For a bitch to become Register of Merit, the following requirements must be met:
 - Her point total must be 40 or more.
 - The points must be earned by 4 or more progeny.
 - Two progeny must achieve the title of Champion, or the Parent Club designation of ROM
 - The remainder must have won at least a major reserve.

THE SAR DOG EXPERIENCE

by Sue Condreras

Every American of the 9/11 era can likely give a detailed account of where they were on that fateful day in 2001. I was a PA Student on my medical rotation at a hospital on Long Island. As the news flashed over the TV, everyone stood frozen in disbelief.

As the days and weeks ensued, it was evident that the rescue efforts were becoming recovery efforts. But the courage and determination of the K9s on the job struck me more than anything. Over 300 dogs took part in the search, rescue, and recovery efforts at Ground Zero. Within hours, dogs certified by FEMA, which specialized in disaster response, came from nationwide to help with the effort. The last living person to be pulled from the wreckage, some 27 hours after the collapse, was found by one of these dogs.

While most of the country focused on human effort, dogs consumed me. I couldn't help but admire their courage and perseverance, willingness to keep working even in the face of danger, and bond with their human partners. It was then that I decided I wanted to be a part of that. I wanted that experience.

I have always had dogs, German Shepherds. Although they were pets, I always tried to realize their potential beyond that. This was my opportunity.

I met Karin Wagner a few years later when I got my first purebred German Shepherd from her and Dennis Mulligan. Eagle Valley's Jess'ter Alkarah, Jesse as I called her, proved special from the minute she walked into my life. It wasn't long before we bonded. I had no idea what was ahead for us at that time.

I joined Long Island Search and Rescue, and our journey began. Many hours of Map and Compass work, GPS training, scent detection, missing person behavior, radio communications, and fitness training began. And that was just the human component. As I had learned, I had to do my part before I could even consider working with a K9.

Once I was set with all my appropriate certifications and armed with a whole litany of new knowledge, Jesse and I began training. Working dogs must undergo multiple tests and evaluations to ensure they are cut out for the job. Not everybody's dog has what it takes to be a working dog. I was reminded that people's lives depend on this, and there was a chance she wouldn't make it. It wasn't long before Jesse proved herself, and I had one of the best working dogs in the northeast. She earned multiple certifications from various agencies for human remains detection and live wilderness search. Obedience was also a huge part of our training.

We continued training together so that we would always be on the ready for whenever the calls came through. Helicopter rides, belaying down cliffs, ropes and knots, navigation, tracking, communications, first aid, and scent detection, we did it all together!

We attended seminars in various states and learned whatever we could from other K9 teams. I was grateful to have had the opportunity to learn from some of the best, including Sandy Bryson, Jonni Joyce, Penny Sullivan, and Cat Warren.

Along our journey, we met many wonderful people and amazing K9 teams. We participated in multiple training efforts and searches. Selfishly, it was a very rewarding experience for me. I took great pride every time somebody complimented my dog.

In 2013, Jesse earned the highest honor from the AKC through an ACE award for Search and Rescue. AKC awarded one dog a year an Award for Canine Excellence in SAR, and we were honored to have been chosen that year. We received the award at the AKC national show in Orlando, and 11 days after this incredible honor, I lost Jesse unexpectedly to mesenteric torsion. She died on Christmas at 6 years old, still in the prime of her career.

I was devastated. I didn't think I would be able to go on without her. She was a part of every breath I took. We were inseparable. A piece of my heart had been ripped out, and I didn't think I could go on in search and rescue anymore. I was going into a serious depression.

And along came Cali, Alkara's California Dreamin'. Anyone who has ever met Cali knows she is impossible to ignore. She gave a new definition of intense, and at nine months old, she was already a big hit in the SAR world. Her drive and her intensity were unlike anything I had ever seen before. We rose to new levels together.

At the German Shepherd National in 2017, which was sadly Leslie's last national, we participated in an SAR demonstration with Cat Warren. Of all the dogs participating that day, Cali was the least experienced. Still, she proved a valuable part of the demonstration and later earned her certification in human remains detection. Her search career was somewhat hindered by the fact that we were traveling all over, showing Fanucci in confirmation. But Cali came with me to every show, and we trained every opportunity we could. She was always willing to show off her skills, and the pride that I once felt running with Jesse was back and stronger than ever with Cali.

Jesse and Cali have since gained their wings, but I will never forget the time we shared working and training together as a team. From the moment that first plane crashed into the World Trade Center in 2001, I had yearned for this type of bond with a dog. I never thought that these two incredible dogs would far exceed my expectations.

There is no experience in the world like being part of a K9 team. These dogs give everything they have to please us and accomplish the task. They are focused, hard-working, courageous, and selfless, and often risk their lives. I am one of the fortunate ones to have ever been able to experience this.

Rightly so, the 911 Memorial Museum honors the spirit and stories of these heroic dogs in a special exhibition, "Dogs of 9/11," in the Museum's Education Center. But beyond this, I want people to be aware of the vast number of these dogs that have worked and are still working to save lives. May God be with all of them. ■
